

Let Them See You is a praise song my country western songwriter friend and I wrote together. After we got the words down, he composed the music and recorded it for me. The lyrics came to me when I was having "a bad vision day" and feeling ashamed of my clumsy efforts. It's hard to feel independent when you trip or run into things. It hurts my pride to ask for help. This song is about letting go of that pride and shame to allow God to shine through whatever weakness or struggle we have. It's about optimism. Our weakness is made perfect in His strength. Take hope, friends!

Let Them See You

By Amy Bovaird and Frank Beck (accompanied)

Sometimes it's hard, so hard to be strong
And keep my heart so tender still,
Through Your mercy and grace, all the bad falls away,
So I can live for you.

Abundant life has come to me.
Now help me plant the seeds
To start a new day without regret.
Just let me be led by You...

Chorus:

Lord, let the good shine through.
Lord, let them only see You.
Oh Lord, hide the pain, the fault and the shame.
Lord, make my heart be true.
Just let them see You...

Take away my pride; I need Your humble spirit inside.
Guide my way; fix my gaze only on You!!!

Lord, let the good shine through.
Lord, let them only see You.
Oh Lord, hide the pain, the fault and the shame.
Lord, make my heart be true.
Just let them see You...

Sometimes it's hard, so hard to be strong
And keep my heart so tender still...
...Just let them see You...
